NEIGHBORHOOD PARKS

¼ mi. & ½ mi. Walking Distances

Overlook Park

Located at N. Interstate Avenue and Overlook Boulevard is a 12.12 acre park with a playground for the community offering apparatus for youngsters, a wading pool, softball diamond, baseball diamond and shelter house.

Dawson Park

One square block of open area on N. Stanton Street and Williams Ave. The busiest playground for small children with a shelter house, wading pool and apparatus area.

Knott Street Center

The former Eliot School at the corner of N. Knott and Rodney Streets was replaced by a new community center in 1960. Available at this center are games and gymnasium activities, arts and crafts, music and social dances, kindergarten, senior citizens' social activities, boxing, acrobatics, talent development and theatre workshop activities.

Lillis-Albina Park

4.68 acres featuring a field used either for softball or junior baseball, this park is located at N. Russell Street and Flint Avenue. The new Eliot School adjoins it to the south, with playcourts in between and rest room facilities in the school building shared with the park.

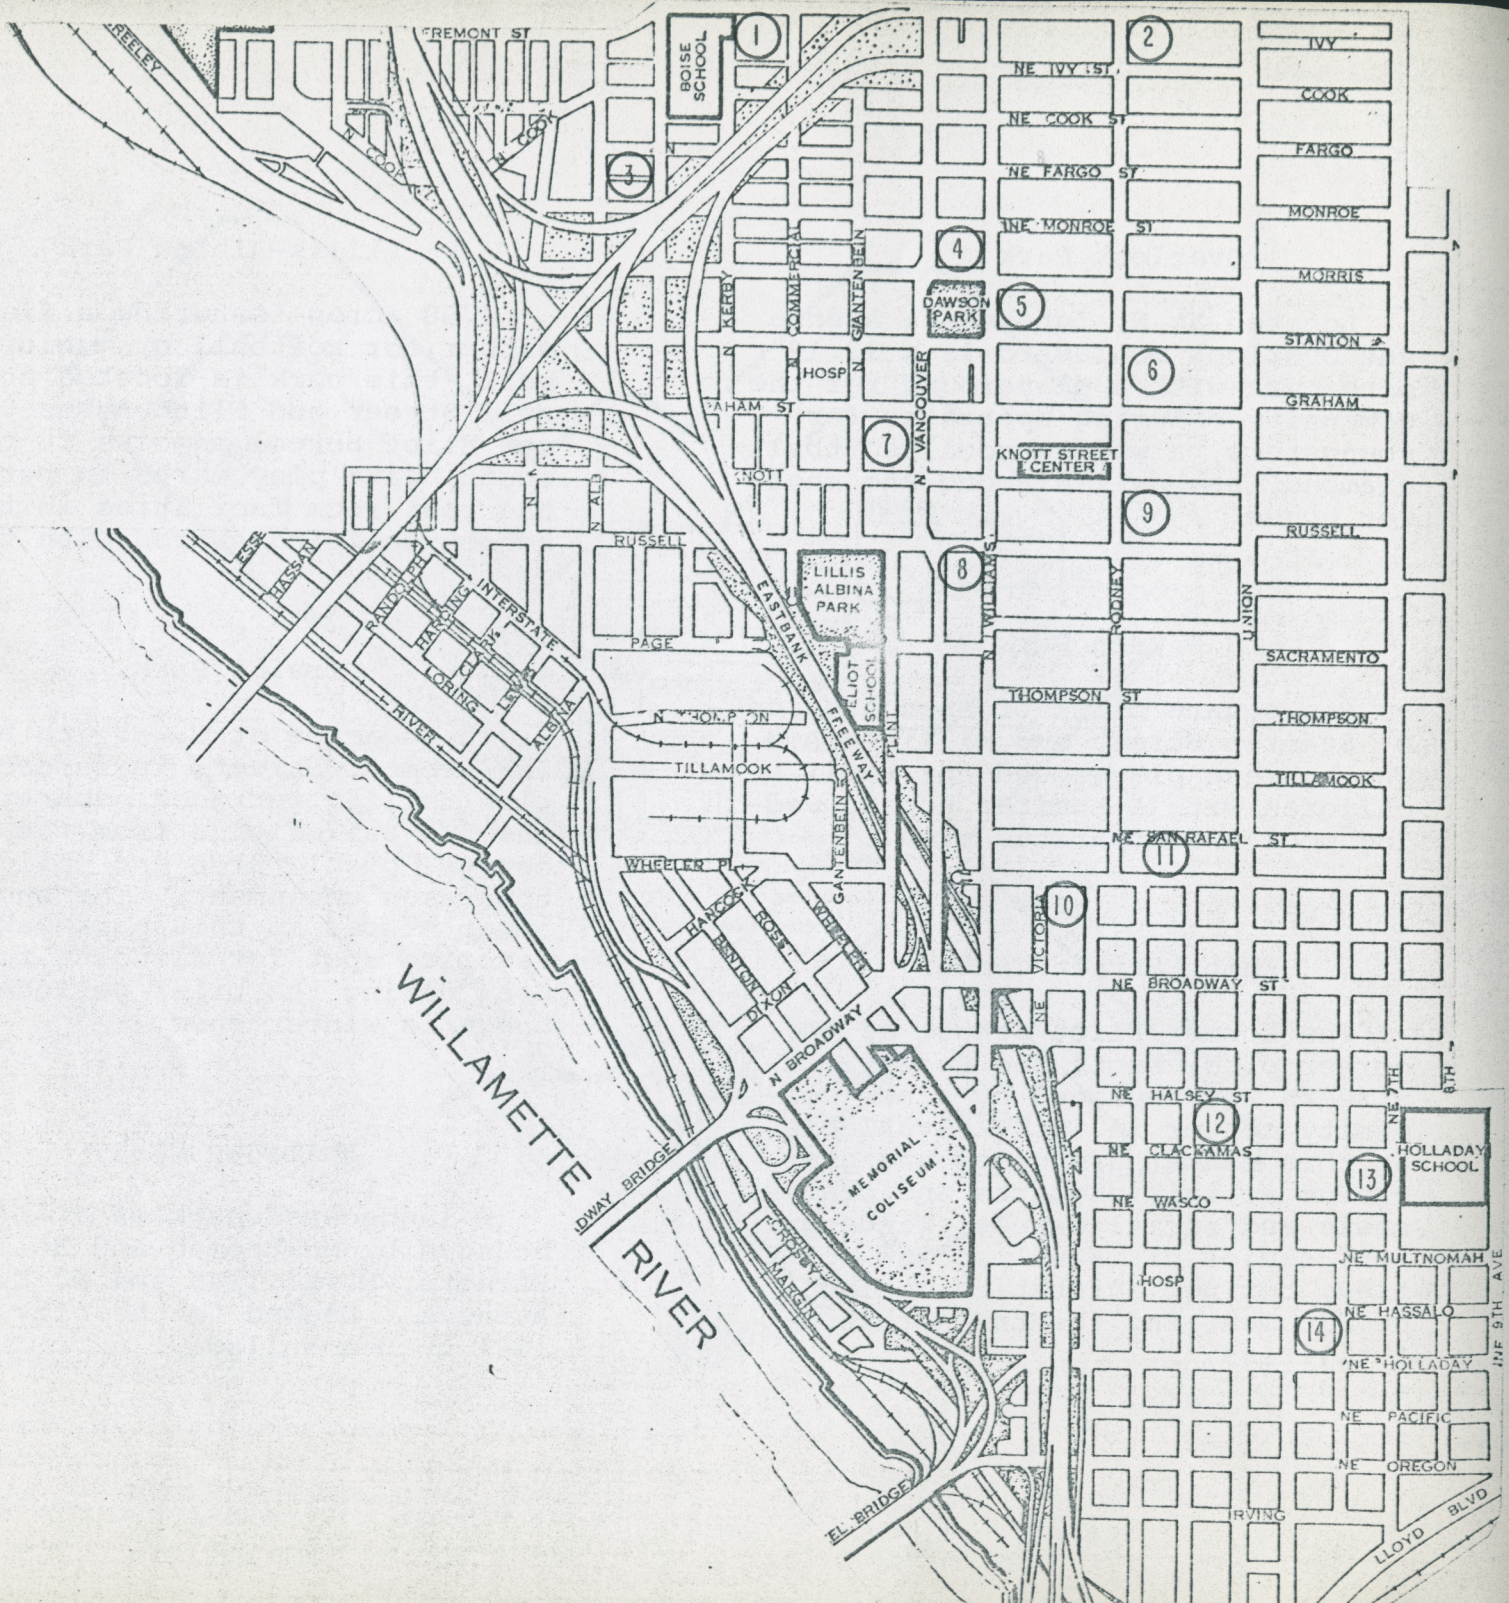

Irving Park

16.06 acres at N. E. 7th Avenue and Fremont Street, is landscaped with rolling terraces separating the two ball fields from the tennis courts, picnic area and children's apparatus equipment. The short, steep slopes in this park make it a favorite spot for sledding for children during the brief periods when there is winter snow.

Holladay Park

A landscaped park of 4.41 acres bounded by Multnomah and Holladay Streets, N. E. 11th and N. E. 13th Avenues. Deeded to the city in 1871 by Ben Holladay.
