REPORT.

Salt Lake City, Utah, January 24, 1906.

Governor John C. Cutler,
Salt Lake City, Utah.

Dear Sir:

When you appointed us to act with you as Commissioners to represent our State at the Lewis & Clark Centennial Exposition held in Portland, Oregon, beginning June 1, 1905, and ending October 14, 1905, you conferred an honor that has been most highly appreciated. And now that we have completed the services we were chosen to perform we wish to submit to you this, our final report of the work done and the business transacted, trusting that it will meet with your approval and the approval of the citizens of Utah.

The act of the legislature of 1905, under which the Commissioners have been operating, appropriated $20,000.00 for the purpose of making an exhibit of the resources of the state at Portland. This was to be in addition to the balance remaining from a previous appropriation of $10,000.00. We find upon assuming our duties that this balance was $9,317.25, making the total sum available for the purpose in view $29,317.25. It will be readily understood that care was made necessary in order to make a creditable showing for the state, and at the same time to keep within the limits of the appropriation. Care and strict economy were rendered all the more necessary by the fact that it was found essential to erect a building at the exposition large enough to accommodate the entire Utah exhibit and good enough for the reception and entertainment of the friends of the State.

In view of these conditions your Commissioners are especially gratified to be able to report that the original sum placed at their disposal has not been entirely exhausted, but that after every known obligation has been met, there remains to be recovered into the state treasury the sum of $2,689.12.

HOW THE START WAS MADE.

The original law providing for an exhibit of the resources of our state at the Lewis & Clark Centennial Exposition was enacted by the Legislature of 1903. It was approved March 12, 1903, and went into effect at once. By virtue of the authority vested in him by that act, Governor Heber M. Wells appointed Fred J. Keisel, A. B. Lewis, George P. Holman and H. B. Clawson to serve with him on the Commission. This Commission organized by electing George P. Holman treasurer and John Q. Cannon secretary. Governor Wells was chairman by virtue of his office.

The law of 1903 was repealed by the act of 1905, Chapter 54. Immediately after the repeal the original Commissioners placed their resignations in the hands of Governor John C. Cutler, who had been elevated to the office in the meantime. These resignations were accepted and the appointment under the new law of the present Commissioners followed, they to act with the Governor as their ex-officio chairman. The new Commissioners qualified by taking the required oath March 25, 1905. Wesley K. Walton was elected vice-chairman, and Rudolph Kuchler, treasurer. Mr. Kuchler filed with the Secretary of State the required bond of $20,000.00.

At subsequent meetings the Commissioners elected M. F. Cunningham, secretary; Spencer Clawson, manager; L. A. Ostien, director of educational exhibits; R. H. Bradford, director of mineral exhibits; Thomas Judd, director of horticultural and agricultural exhibits; Miss Elizabeth Orth, assistant director of educational exhibits; Lester H. Walton, Miss Bertie Madsen, Miss Ada Mack and A. H. Chambers, attendants at the Utah state building at the exposition at Portland.

UTAH BUILDING AT THE FAIR.

Right at the beginning the Commissioners found themselves at a disadvantage in getting so late a start. When they visited Portland, the last week in March, they found all the desirable space in the main exposition buildings disposed of, and only out-of-the-way corners to be had for display purposes.

It was then decided to erect a state building large enough to accommodate all the Utah exhibits. This would require 8,000 feet of floor space, and make necessary the erection of a large building for a small amount of money. Beauty of architecture and the ornamentation were sacrificed, much to the regret of all connected with the enterprise.

A most desirable spot was assigned to Utah by the exposition management—a point of land on Guild's Lake, giving an unobstructed view of the greater part of the exposition grounds and in close proximity to the Idaho, Illinois and New York state buildings. The southern colonial style of architecture was adopted for the building as best fitted to the spot; as giving the impression of hospitality and rest; and as affording the greatest amount of floor space for the least outlay of money. Through a misunderstanding the point of ground was cut down several feet, so that the original idea of the Commissioners was not entirely carried out. The alteration was discovered too late to be remedied. In this way much was lost in the way of beauty in building and grounds.

INSIDE OF THE BUILDING.

Inside the building was ideal for exhibition purposes. Large windows on all sides and a large skylight in the roof afforded abundant light. The main floor was 55 by 95 feet in extent; the second floor consisted of a generous balcony around a wide open space in the center; an annex in the rear afforded the best facilities for the work of the concentrating mill. A broad veranda stretched across three sides of the building.

Notwithstanding the late start, the Utah building was completed and the exhibits installed soon after the official opening of the exposition, and before visitors began to arrive in considerable number.

The arrangement of the exhibits in the building was highly complimented by all visitors, and there were points about the exhibit that attracted wide attention. Notable among these was the bust of President Jefferson and the fac-simile of his letter to Meriweather Lewis over the entrance. To the left of the main entrance on the main floor was arranged the mineral exhibit. In quantity and variety it far surpassed the mineral exhibit of any other state at the exposition. At the same time the Commissioners realize that it was insignificant compared with what Utah is capable of showing in this field

On the right of the main entrance was arranged the educational exhibit. This overflowed into the balcony. It was by far the best educational exhibit ever brought together in Utah. Nothing to compare with it was found in any other building at the exposition. The high quality and endless variety of the work displayed delighted educators from all parts of the land.

An artistic centerpiece in the building, constructed under the supervision of Thomas Judd, gave a good idea to all visitors of what Utah can do in the way of grains, grasses, vegetables and fruits. Other exhibits were artistically arranged in various parts of the building. The balcony was fitted up with reception rooms, reading and music rooms, and retiring apartments for the officials and their families.

The total cost of the building, grounds and decorations was approximately $7,500.00. But, notwithstanding this large cost, one-fourth of the total appropriation, we strongly recommend a state building for the accommodation of all the exhibits of the state should Utah take part in similar expositions in the future. By keeping all exhibits together under one roof a much better showing can be made; the cost of maintenance is less, and a common gathering place is afforded for all visitors from the state and all friends from outside.

WHAT UTAH HAD TO SHOW.

When the character of the exhibit to be made was first considered by your Commissioners it was decided that special stress should be laid upon the educational advancement and the mineral resources of the state. It was felt that because of the splendid agriculture and horticulture resources of California, Oregon and Washington—states right on the ground—and because of the fact that the seasons in Utah are more backward, and the haul from this state to the exposition so long, it would be difficult to enter into competition along these lines with a reasonable hope for good results.

Utah was at a peculiar disadvantage in the matter of a fruit display. All exhibits of this kind had to be shipped by express at regular rates after being hauled in wagons, often for long distances to the railroad. To say nothing of the excessive cost of shipment it was next to impossible to transport ripe fruit so far and have it in good condition for exhibition on its arrival. Despite all these drawbacks it affords the Commissioners much pleasure to report that Utah fared especially well in the way of awards in these departments. For the good results secured they desire to give special credit to President Thomas Judd and the other members of the State Board of Horticulture.

Utah has every reason to be proud of the showing made at this exposition along educational lines. To carry off the sweepstakes in the department of education in competition with states that take such high rank in this most important of all branches of human endeavor is an accomplishment that should be considered worth many times the entire cost of the entire exhibit. When to this accomplishment is added the splendid awards won by individual schools and departments a victory is recorded that must add materially to the prestige of the state in all parts of our country for many years to come.

In all matters pertaining to the educational exhibit the Commissioners were guided largely by the recommendations of the State Board of Education, a body of public-spirited and well trained educators. This board recommended the appointment of L. A. Ostien, of the State Agricultural College, as director of the educational exhibit. The recommendation was adopted. It recommended that $5,000.00 be apportioned to defray the cost of the educational exhibit. The Commissioners found it necessary to reduce this to $3,000.00.

GOOD SHOWING OF THE SCHOOLS.

Mr. Ostien performed his duties with zeal and enthusiasm. He visited the schools in many parts of the state and urged upon teachers and school officials the importance of making a creditable showing among the proud states of the west and northwest. He was ably seconded in all his efforts by the State Board of Education; by school officials everywhere; by instructors; and, above all, by the children, who caught the spirit of the undertaking and are entitled to their full share of the honors that have come to their state, placing Utah at the head of the list among all states that competed.

Throughout the exposition Mr. Ostien had charge of the educational exhibit under the general supervision of Manager Spencer Clawson. He was ably assisted in his work by Miss Elizabeth Orth. Justice demands that mention be made also of the efficient work done by Joseph E. McKnight, of the Training School of the University of Utah. At the expense of the university Mr. McKnight attended the exposition and explained to all interested persons the work of the University Training School.

One of the unique features of the Utah educational exhibit, one that attracted wide attention, was the class of five children from the State School for the Deaf and the Dumb and the Blind. This class was in charge of Miss Frances N. Eddy, of the school. Practical demonstrations of the work of the school were given in the Utah building twice a day during the greater part of August. In this way a good illustration was given of what Utah is doing along this line for the unfortunate children of the intermountain states. The work was highly commended by experts. At the same time it was intensely interesting to all who witnessed it.

UTAH'S MINERAL DISPLAY THE BEST.

The capture of the gold medal for the best collective exhibit of minerals was another outcome of the exposition from which the Commissioners derive satisfaction. This victory is all the more pleasing when the efforts put forth by a number of the splendid mineral producing states of the west are considered. It is an announcement to the world that when a considerable fraction of the mineral wealth of the state is laid bare, Utah in this field will stand without a rival on the American continent. This applies to the variety of the minerals in the state, as well as to the enormous deposits and wonderful richness of the ores.

Robert H. Bradford, of the State School of Mines, who was chosen director of the mineral exhibit, deserves credit for the intelligence and zeal with which he performed his duties. His work in operating the concentrating plant at the Utah building did much to attract attention to the mineral exhibit of the state.

The Commissioners were aided in this department by the material turned over to them by the Commissioners for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. These exhibits furnished a nucleus that was valuable. It was unfortunate that a complete schedule of the contents of each package returned from St. Louis was not furnished. This would have helped wonderfully in the work of adding to and bettering the exhibit. As it was it was impossible to tell what was on hand until after the packages were opened at Portland, and then it was too late to make good the defects in the exhibit.

The experience of the Commissioners at the Lewis & Clark Centennial Exposition demonstrates to their satisfaction the wisdom of a permanent collection of mineral for the state. This could be kept and cared for by some organization in the state. Then when it was desired to make a showing of the resources of the state it would serve as the basis of this exhibit and save much time and expense in the collection of specimens. The Commissioners are also of the opinion that the state should secure, as soon as possible, substantial and attractive cabinets in which to display its mineral exhibits.

WHERE GREAT CREDIT IS DUE.

Mine owners who, by their liberality and state pride, made it possible for the Commissioners to make so good a display of the mineral wealth of the state, are entitled to sincere thanks from all citizens. To name them in a report of this character would be impossible. Their reward will follow as the direct result of the interest in Utah's mineral wealth aroused in all parts of the country.

While on this subject the Commissioners wish to acknowledge the service rendered the state by Harry S. Joseph in furnishing free ore for use in the concentrator at the exposition. This ore was admirably fitted for the purpose. The concentrates were placed in small bottles, and 25,000 of these were distributed as souvenirs.

Outside of the regular exhibits there were agencies that aided the Commissioners in making a good impression for Utah at the exposition. The Ogden Tabernacle Choir is entitled to special mention. This magnificent body of singers, under the leadership of Joseph Ballentyne, and ably seconded by Miss Emma Lucy Gates, J. J. McClellan and Willard Weihe, won golden opinion from all who heard them. The general impression was voiced by President H. W. Goode, of the Exposition Commission. In a public address at the Utah building he said that this choir was the best single feature of the entire exposition. In the judgment of the Commissioners the public-spirited men who, under the leadership of Fred J. Keisel, made possible the visit to the exposition of this combination of Utah talent rendered valuable service to the entire state.

The Oregon Short Line Railroad, the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Company, the Rio Grande Western and the Salt Lake Route assisted materially in making the exhibit of the state a success.

Luke Crawshaw has the thanks of the Commission for the preparation of the irrigation model of the Bear River Valley. In this he was ably assisted by the Utah Sugar Company. This model attracted wide attention. It was a good illustration of what enterprising men are doing in the state to reclaim the desert spots and make them fruitful. Special exhibits of merit were also made by the Nephi Plaster & Manufacturing Company, the Inland Crystal Salt Company, the Utah Fire Clay Company, the Utah Canning Company, Hewlett Brothers and the Kendall Brothers of Lehi.

PRESS RENDERS GOOD SERVICE.

Above all other consideration the Lewis & Clark Centennial Exposition, like all other expositions, was an advertising proposition. Its essential object was to proclaim to the world what the western states are doing and what they are capable of doing. Utah made an exhibit at this exposition because the citizens of the state wished all men to know of the resources, the accomplishments and the possibilities of the commonwealth. In this respect the Commissioners find themselves under special obligations to the press, not only of Utah, but of Portland as well. The home papers performed valuable service in arousing interest in the enterprise, and in informing the citizens of all parts of the state as to what was going forward. The press of Portland was uniformly courteous, generous and absolutely fair in its treatment of Utah and her people.

Your Commissioners are of the opinion that the greatest service rendered Utah in connection with the exposition was the removal of the unfortunate feeling that had arisen between citizens of Oregon and citizens of this states as the result of the American Mining Congress episode of the year before. It was feared that this unfortunate outbreak of passion would result in prejudice against Utah and nullify the benefits expected from the exposition.

One of the main objects of the Commissioners was to remove, as far as possible, the prejudice aroused. It affords them pleasure to be able to report that success attended their efforts in this direction. Every reasonable courtesy was extended the representatives of Utah by the officials of the exposition, by the city officials of Portland, by Governor George E. Chamberlain, of Oregon, and by the Portland Commercial Club. The best feeling was displayed toward the state at all times and upon all occasions. Courteous treatment to all visitors was insisted upon on the part of all persons connected with the Utah exhibit and all attendants at the Utah building. The Commissioners are convinced that Utah stood high in the estimation of all who came in contact with the representatives of the state from the beginning to the close of the exposition.

"UTAH DAY" AT THE FAIR.

August 24 was set apart by the exposition management as "Utah Day." A special programme was arranged for the occasion. Governor John C. Cutler, Governor George E. Chamberlain, of Oregon; President H. W. Goode, of the Exposition Commission, and Congressman Joseph Howell, of Utah, were the chief speakers. Music was furnished by the Ogden Tabernacle Choir and by one of the leading exposition bands. A reception was tendered Governor Cutler, and Utah kept open house throughout the day in the way of refreshments. The crowd that assembled was far beyond the capacity of the building. The best feeling prevailed and the state was the recipient of many high compliments. The affair could not have been more successful nor more pleasant.

Logan, Ogden and Salt Lake City celebrated special days at the Utah building the same week. Music of high order, speaking and refreshments were features. These special city days served as times of reunion and were enjoyable to all who participated on that account.

Advertising matter was extensively distributed at the exposition under the supervision of the Commissioners. Ten thousand copies of a booklet entitled "Utah," setting forth the advantages offered by the state to investors in all lines, were distributed. This booklet was highly commended. A circular describing the concentrating mill and telling of the mineral resources of the state was distributed.

A souvenir invitation to attend the "Utah Day" exercises was presented to the Portland Commercial Club at a special meeting of the club called for the purpose. The invitation was in raised letters in gold on a sheet of satin-finished silver representing the regular letterhead of the Commission. This was surrounded by a massive frame composed of alternate bars of iron, copper and gold with corners fastened with bunches of sego lilies in silver. The whole was mounted upon a block of Utah mahogany. The souvenir was intended to convey, with the good wishes of all citizens of Utah, an idea of the mineral wealth of the state. It was received with great enthusiasm and occupies the place of honor among the treasures of the club.

HOW THE FUNDS WERE HANDLED.

In the disposal of the funds available for exposition purposes the Commissioners found it necessary to transfer a portion of the money to Portland. The business of the Commission at that end of the line could not be transacted under any other arrangement. A contingent fund was established at the Bank of California, in Portland. This fund was made subject to the order of Manager Spencer Clawson, each check to be accompanied by the appropriate bill and voucher, and these to be forwarded by the bank to the Commissioners. This fund was renewed from time to time as the business demanded. In all $13,850.00 was disposed of in this way. Every cent of it was properly accounted for. Every check issued, every corresponding voucher and every bill for which the check was issued is now on file in this office and will accompany this report. The final statement submitted by Manager Spencer Clawson is also made part of this report.

At the beginning $3,000.00 was apportioned by the Commissioners, or as much of that sum as might be found necessary to defray the expenses of making an educational exhibit. Of this sum it is found that $2,890.93 was expended, leaving a balance of $109.07 on hand after all accounts are settled. The fund is accounted for in this way:

Collection of exhibits and maintenance.....	$1,594.93
Salary of Miss Elizabeth Orth.....	232.50
Salary of L. A. Ostien.....	1,020.00
Transportation for Miss Elizabeth Orth.....	43.50
Balance on hand unexpended.....	109.07

Total	$3,000.00
-------------	------------

In the same way $2,000.00 was apportioned to defray the expense of agriculture and horticulture exhibits. Of this sum the Commissioners find that $1,593.85 was expended, leaving a balance at the close of $406.15. The fund is accounted for in this way:

Collection of exhibits and maintenance.....	$1,161.85
Salary of Thomas Judd.....	420.00
Transportation for Thomas Judd.....	12.00
Balance unexpended	460.15
Total	<hr/> $2,000.00

PRACTICE OF STRICT ECONOMY.

Right at the start the Commissioners determined to keep within the appropriation. In order to do this it became necessary to enforce strict economy in many lines where liberality might have brought better results. Many propositions that possessed elements of merit were rejected because of this policy, and it may be that the state was subjected to adverse criticisms in some quarters for a too strict adherence to the rule laid down. At the same time it was felt that the taxpayers of the state who furnished the money would be better satisfied in the long run if a reasonable business course were followed.

At the close of the exposition it was found that there was furniture and other material on hand that could not be used to advantage by the Deseret Agriculture & Manufacturing Society. The law provided that all exhibits were to be turned over to this society at the close of the exposition, except such as were sold by the Commissioners. It was thought wise to sell some articles. It was decided to sell only to state institutions and to sell at the uniform rate of 50 per cent of the original cost. This plan was adopted for this reason: It was felt that if articles were sold to individuals there might be charges of favoritism. This charge could not be made if the sales were made to state institutions—that the property belonged to the state in the first place, and that by selling it to state institutions the Commissioners were simply passing it from one department of the state to the other.

The law under which the Commissioners have been operating provided for a monthly statement to be filed with the state auditor together with the original vouchers issued during the month. This has been done. Every disbursement by the Commissioners from the beginning is represented by an original and duplicate voucher approved by all the Commissioners and receipted by the person to whom the payment was made. The original vouchers are on file in the office of the state auditor. The duplicate vouchers are submitted herewith as an essential part of this report.

ALL ACCOUNTS ARE CLOSED.

At the final meeting of the Commissioners, January 24, 1906, with all members present, the accounts of both Secretary M. F. Cunningham and Manager Spencer Clawson were audited. Every cent was properly accounted for and every record and voucher was found to be correct. At the same meeting the following were unanimously adopted and ordered spread upon the permanent records of the Commission:

Resolved, That M. F. Cunningham has performed the duties of secretary to the complete satisfaction of every member of this Commission. His loyalty to the best interests of the state and the integrity of his work; his vigilance, tact and courtesy at all times are worthy of the highest praise. Very much of the credit that came to Utah through the Lewis & Clark Centennial Exposition is due to his efforts. We, therefore, desire, on behalf of the whole state, to have spread upon the records of this Commission, to become part of its history, a vote of sincere thanks to him for the valuable services rendered.

Resolved, That the thanks of the Commission are hereby extended to our efficient manager, Spencer Clawson. It is with a feeling of profound satisfaction we recall the faithful services performed by him. He has been diligent and alert in the discharge of his duties. and in carrying out the plans and purposes of the Commission, which, without his executive industry and tact, would have fallen short of completion. His courtesy to all visitors at the Utah building is highly appreciated by the Commissioners. It is worthy of the highest praise we are able to bestow. We wish him in full measure that future happiness which a consciousness of duty well done should bring to a faithful servant.

Resolved, That the thanks of the Commission are due and are hereby extended to Rudolph Kuchler for the efficient manner in which he has filled, without pay, the office of treasurer of the Commission, and for the correctness of his accounts.

Resolved, That the thanks of the Commission are due and hereby extended to Prof. L. A. Ostien, Prof. R. H. Bradford, Thomas Judd, Miss Elizabeth Orth, Miss Ada Mack, Miss Bertie Madsen, Lester H. Walton, A. H. Chambers and J. E. McKnight for good services to the state and the efficient manner in which they performed their duties. Their hearty co-operation in making the Utah exhibit a success is fully appreciated.

This Commission considers that this report would be incomplete if they failed to acknowledge the splendid services rendered the state by you, Governor Cutler; to express their full appreciation of the high motives that have actuated you at all times in connection with this work; and to thank you most sincerely for the uniform courtesy extended them at all times and under all circumstances. This has rendered the work pleasant. The association will be remembered with pleasure always.
