PREFACE

With this little book we present to the public some facts pertaining to the city that will prove useful as a reference, also the program of events of the Second Annual Rose Festival and other useful information and a list of the principal Hotels and Rooming Houses.

For some of the matter contained in the publication we are indebted to the "Chamber of Commerce Bulletin," "The Rose City Magazine," "The Portland Guide Book," and various other reliable sources and thus present our compilation to the public, tourist and those who have an opportunity of visiting the city during the Rose Festival.

We call the attention of the public to the advertisers in this book, they are especially reliable in their respective lines.

In adopting the phrase "Greater Portland—she expands while others grow," we have tried to show our city's pre-eminence; that she has reached the summit of her efforts and is now branching out and literally expanding her industries, boundaries, enterprizes, but above all her broad-minded, open-handed spirit of hospitality which is resounding to her credit all over the earth.

THE ROSE

BERNARD MULRINE In "The Western Lady"

It blooms in tranquil and calm repose
No fairer vision eye can view,
The dainty, sweet and fragrant rose;
Brightest flower that ever grew.

Wet with the silvery sparkling dew,
It wafts a fragrance rich and rare;
Each petal gay with lovely hue,
Sheds perfume thru the morning air.

O'er head the sun is shining bright.
All nature thrills, no voice seems sad
'Midst scenes of verdure and of light
Blooms the Rose, the world is glad.

The Rose Festival

Portland, the prosperous city of the Northwest, has ever been modest in crying her manifold advantages to the world, but let it be said with no attempt at exaggeration that no municipality in this broad country is more blessed than Portland. Commercial, financial and industrial wealth abound, for the region of fertile country from which the city draws, possesses a diversity of natural resources. The inhabitant of the State of Oregon is not compelled to follow one vocation as a means of livelihood, as obtains in many commonwealths. Our broad rivers are productive of wealth; our forests contain the finest timber; our mining prospects are second to none; our orchard lands grow the choicest fruits and our agricultural tracts are splendidly productive. Oregon's cattle, stock raising and dairy interests are now of national repute.

Portland, with her 200,000 people, is the center—the market place. It is also a gateway to every kind of commerce on the globe.

The approaching Rose Festival will demonstrate another admirable characteristic of this God-benefitted country. It will convince tens of thousands of visitors that Portland and vicinity rests on beds of flowers. So let us not be timid in proving to all that nowhere under the sun is there a more acceptable place for active men and women than in Portland and Oregon.

The second annual Rose Festival means much to the state and city, showing the possibilities in wealth of attractions and beauty of climate and scenery.

GREATER PORTLAND

"She Expands while others Grow"

Portland is a metropolitan city.

Portland owns a $75,000 fireboat.

Portland's water system cost $4,250,000.

Portland's area covers nearly 45 square miles.

Portland is the largest city in the Pacific Northwest.

Portland has spent nearly $2,000,000 in dredging its harbor.

Portland is the largest lumber producing city in the world.

Portland has the only fresh water harbor on the Pacific Coast. Vessels entering the Willamette River do not require their bottoms scraped, as the fresh water destroys the barnacles and loosens them.

Portland's harbor has a depth of 25½ feet. Electric conveyors are used in loading and unloading vessels.

Portland is a city of homes, there being more than 24,000 homes, exclusive of hostleries of all descriptions.

Portland's citizens contributed $400,000 in two days toward the Lewis and Clark Exposition held in the fall of 1905.

Portland ranks third in wheat exports in the United States, New York and Galveston ranking first and second respectively.

Portland's leading public institutions include four hospitals, numerous aid societies, orphan asylum. Seamen's Institute, etc.

Portland's street railways employ nearly 1,700 persons, who earn $1,200,000 annually.

Portland offers remarkable inducements to investors, tourists and settlers on account of the cheap cost of living and healthy climate.

Portland is the second healthiest city in the United States, according to Government figures, its death rate being only 9.5 per thousand.

Portland is the only city which has water grade connection with the vast Inland Empire—Eastern Oregon, Eastern Washington and Idaho.

Portland is on the Willamette River, 12 miles from its confluence with the Columbia, and accommodates ocean liners drawing 25½ feet.

Portland's advantage as a transportation center lies in the fact that freight moves on a down grade toward it, thus causing an immense saving in both time and money.

Portland is one of the art centers of America, having an art museum full of valuable paintings, prints and sculpture. It also has the third largest camera club in the United States.

Portland has over 2,000 manufacturing establishments, with an invested capital of more than $32,000,000 and employing 23,000 persons, who earn $9,000,000 annually, and who produce $50,000,000 annually.

Portland ranks high as a social center, all the leading fraternal organizations having lodges in this city, and the following leading clubs are in existence: Arlington, Commercial, Concordia, Multnomah and University.

Portland is a great educational center, having 38 public schools, 8 kindergartens, a law school a medical school, a dental college, 13 sectarian schools, a military school, 5 business colleges, 3 preparatory schools, 2 academies of music and elocution, two correspondence schools, a school of practical advertising, 34 private schools, two manual training schools and a great number of other institutions.
